A GOLFERS TALE

"Sunday morning I got up early, quietly dressed, grabbed a couple of muesli bars for my breakfast, and slipped quietly into the garage to make my escape. I loaded my clubs and golf buggy into the boot of the car, and proceeded to back the car out into the darkness of the rising dawn.

I didn't get far out onto the driveway before I discovered that the day had brought with it a torrential downpour and the wind was blowing at more than 50 mph. I pulled back into the garage, turned on the radio to check the weather forecast, and discovered it was predicted to be bad all day.

I decided to cut my losses and opted for plan "B" so I went back into the house, quietly undressed, and slipped back into bed and I cuddled up to my wife's back, now with a different anticipation. I whispered, "The weather out there is terrible."

My loving wife of 5 years replied, "And, can you believe it my stupid husband is still dumb enough to be out playing golf in that?"

And that's how the fight started...

A special thanks to BIG Mick who put some money over the bar for drinks for the boys. Your generosity was greatly appreciated.

Cape Schank Golf Course Results June

It was never going to be an easy day on Sunday. A 6.30am start on a Sunday morning just to be at the course on time is always going to put you on the back foot from the start, and then when you added a challenging golf course and a strong cold sea breeze to the tiredness equation, it was inevitable the scores were always going to be ugly. And ugly they were on most accounts. Only the top 5 players scored within the buffer zone of their handicaps and then the rest of the field posted scores ranging from “not so good” to “absolutely abysmal.”

Before the round this month everyone was sent a link to a PDF document with tips on how to best play the course on a hole by hole basis. Obviously only a few people bothered to take notice of the information supplied and many came unprepared choosing to ignore the valuable knowledge it was supposed to have provided you with. For the benefit of all of our club members and for future reference I have now prepared a PDF document which offers tips on how not to play the Cape Schank golf course. This document covers the places you should not hit your ball and demonstrates how poor course management can lead you to a NETT 99.

TO PLAY THE CAPE SCHANK GOLF COURSE

LINK to: HOW NOT

Mick Harper used more than just the local PDF cheat notes to guide him around the course to shoot the day's lowest score. He came armed with intimate personal course knowledge after trekking down to Cape Schank at least twice during the month just to get some course management practice done. A few people have been muttering that this kind of sneaky shenanigans is a form of cheating and worthy of a 2011 leather wedge nomination and fine worthy, but either way, it worked wonders for him on Sunday. Mick shot 36 on the front nine and backed it up with a 44 on the tougher back part of the course. His 80 was by far the best performance for the day and included an eagle Putt on the 3rd hole, a birdie on the fourth and he won the Nearest to pin prizes for three out of the 5 par 3 holes. Mick claimed NTP on the 4th, 7th and 14th holes and was also able to out muscle the big hitters Alister Bayer, Gerard MacIssac and Big Ball Breasley to also get his name engraved on the longest drive honors board as well.

As good as he may have played this month, Mick was still unable claim back to back titles after last month's victory at Centenary Park. Congratulations to Phil Plane who after 37 rounds (4256 shots) and 4.5 years has finally won his first monthly title. Phil played a scintillating round and was the only golfer to play under Nett Par and was a very deserving winner in very trying conditions. Phil is having a brilliant season and is currently sitting in 2nd position and is still just within striking distance of the annual points championship despite playing one less round than the current leader.

Gerard MacIssac made a very late charge up the leaderboard rankings by birdying 3 of the last 4 holes. Incredibly despite such a brilliant finish to the round he was still not able to pick up any skins for the day since all of the holes from 15 to 18 were Jackpot and in the end they did not go off at all. The big winners in the skins competition were Dean Fitzpatrick who won 3 skins with his 3 for 4 on the third hole, Ben Nichol claimed 6x Skins for his par for 4 stableford points on the 9th hole and then the next five holes jackpotted until Grant Maize used the generous two shots from the handicapper on the 14th hole to boost the value of his par 3 to gain 4 stableford points and win the hole outright. Grant could probably count himself a little lucky to win the skins since Mick Harper had a very easy birdie Putt after a brilliant NTP winning approach but he missed the 10' foot birdie putt and then proceeded to miss the next 2x as well giving him a 4 putt 5 on the hole.

When queried on how he could possibly miss such an easy putt, especially when he was playing so well all day, Mick replied “I didn't miss the putt, I hit the putt, it's just the ball missed the hole 3x times.”

Quite a few people had difficulty on the putting surface, the large undulating greens proved a challenge for many. Three putts were the order of the day and like Mick Harper a few guys had to tip into their wallets for the dreaded $2-00 fines for a four putt. Incredibly the guy who had the worst round for the day, was the same person who never looked like missing a putt, Stu Coopers 120 only consisted of 30 putts and he did not even give away a 3 putt for the entire miserable walk. Stu was rolling putts in from any where and everywhere and his specialty appeared to be the 12 to 15 meter double breaker putts that he would either sink or leave within inches of the cup.

Gerard MacIssac also had a great day with the flat stick. He rolled in a monster for birdie on the 16th which broke, left, went up hill then broke right rolled downhill before turning left again at the very end of its 24 meter journey to finish at the bottom of the hole. Before making the miracle Putt Gerard was actually contemplating chipping the ball from on the green with his 7 Iron, just to try and eliminate some of the difficult terrain he needed to get across. In the end, he persisted with the flat stick, closed his eyes and hoped for the best. Fortunately for Gerard the balls roller coaster ride ended at the bottom of the cup.

The journey between each shot was a roller coaster ride for “Slinky” who spent the entire 18 holes with his eyes closed. Poor John Mea drew the short straw and was partnered as buggy buddies with Brendan Seagrave. John then made the fatal mistake of saying to Brendan “you can drive the buggy if you want.” From the moment he handed over the keys it was a matter of hold on for dear life. Brendan’s cart only had one speed and that was full throttle, he jumped on the breaks like a formula one driver and he threw the buggy around corners like it was one of those green machine kid’s bikes from the 1970’s. When the cart was finally returned to the Pro-shop it was sent straight into the mechanics workshop where it was found to be needing new brakes, repairs on the broken suspension, 4 new tyres, a front wheel alignment and a complete steam clean of the passenger seat where a mysterious brownish stain had appeared where Slinky had been sitting.

You can’t blame Slinky for shitting himself, it’s a known fact Brendan is a menace on the roads, in fact sometimes he can be a menace even when he is not in the drivers seat. For example on Sunday while playing the 12th hole he managed to get his name onto a car insurance claim when he hooked his ball out onto the road and it hit the back of a car driving out of the golf course. All that could be heard across the golf course was a loud call of “FORE” followed by one “almighty clunk” as his ball smashed into the rear tray of a moving vehicle. Amazingly the driver didn’t wait to stick around, to investigate the damage or to yell abuse at him, perhaps he thought that Big Mick Harper was the culprit of the wayward projectile (who would want to argue with him) or maybe the guy was just in a hurry to get out of Cape Schank grounds to find safer pastures because he had heard that more danger was lurking because Stu Coops was on the golf course and he was having a very bad day. Which ever the reason he didn’t stick around to discuss the golf ball sized dint in the back of his car but he did keep the SRIXON 00 as a souvenir.

When Stu Coops is having a bad day there is no safe place to be. Our club’s industrious co-founder was in a world of hurt on Sunday so there is little wonder that all of the cars and the occupants from the on-course luxury apartments were exiting the Cape Schank resort on mass. To put it in perspective Stu finished the day with 15x less golf balls in his bag than what he started with. The inquisitive Real Estate conducted site inspections on almost every plot of land and accommodation facility to be found around the course. He had an ever-depleting supply of golf balls. Stu amassed his worst ever round with the Social Club posting 7 shots worse than his previous worst game. He racked up a total of 120 strokes in all to finish in the Pink Dress position with a Nett 99. Even Deano Fitzpatrick’s 73x shots on the back nine was not good (or bad) enough to surpass the devastating score that Stu had.

As far as $$$ per stroke goes Stu definitely got his green fees monies worth. On numerous occasions, Stu was forced to be hitting shots 3 and 5 from the tee. On one of his worst holes Stu lost 3 balls in a row. After dropping a ball with a stroke plus distance penalty, when asked what stroke he was playing, he grumbled “technically it is my 2nd stroke but it is my 8th shot.” Understandably he wasn’t a happy man and finished that hole with a 12.

On at least 2x separate occasions Stu’s golf ball disappeared over the golf course boundaries and soon after a loud “Bang!, bang, Bang!!! could be heard reverberating around the golf course as the ball hit the roof of some poor person’s million dollar luxury holiday villa. (I hope it was the roof.) There were plenty of other close calls too, where the houses adjoining the fairways were only just lucky enough to be saved by the security screening or dense tree foliage protecting them.

Stu’s brother Adam, made his maiden come-back performance after 18 months out to pasture following a child induced suspension of his Sunday Leave Pass entitlement. With a year and a half out of the game at least Adam had an excuse for his bad performance, but nonetheless he still would have gone home with ringing in his ears and any aching head after a very brutal day. The only positive to his day pass with out the wife and kid was that Adam got to make a new friend. Craig Howell was a stranger to Adam, until Sunday but he still went to extraordinary lengths to befriend him and brighten up Craig’s day. On the short (270meter dog leg) Par 4, 18th hole, Adams generous nature came into play when he head butted Craig’s drive (who was playing in the group behind) to stop it from landing in the greenside bunker. By stopping the ball with his skull Adam was able keep Craig's ball on to the side of the green and away from the deep cavernous bunker. Apparently, Craig's ball came from no-where, there wasn't so much as an utterance of warning from the group behind as the drive flew over the dog leg and bounced once about 10 meters in front of Adam before hitting him on the side of the head. The ball ricocheted off his sawdust filled cranium and finished on the side of the green, setting Craig up with a possible eagle opportunity. Fortunately Adams dad, Geoff was on site to offer Adam assistance, and comfort, when he said "Lucky it hit you on the top of your head, if it had of hit you in the face it might have done some damage."

It seems as though this month there was an abnormally high number of incidents involving close calls, these near misses as well as the golf ball induced damage mentioned previously make it an appropriate time to remind you all that, although the Social Club does not enforce it, it is recommended that you consider taking out some sort of public liability insurance just or cover your butt and avoid the risk of a potential lawsuit if ever you were responsible for some of major golf related accident.

PLEASE NOTE: Your green fees alone do not exempt you from legal responsibility and the golf course will not offer any form of Personal public liability insurance.

Attached is a link to the SLP website which explains the insurance options and also leads you to a link whereby you can down load an insurance application form for Victorian Golf Association.

One person who was never in danger of harming anybody on Sunday was Neil Phillips who never actually made it to the first tee. Neil had a big night at the local footy club, and was last seen around midnight doing Ouzo shots, with a few of the under 16 players. Obviously the kids drank him under the table because it wasn't until he called at 10.30am to see if we had hit off yet and to say he was running a little bit late, that any one knew whether he was alive or dead.

Shaun Breheny must have also had serious thoughts about being a No-Show after he arrogantly predicted a Rory Macillroy style obliteration of all of his competitors. In pre-game correspondence this confident new member suggested he will be able to beat everyone by at least 10 shots.

Subject: RE: Groups for Cape Schank Round. Still a few people are yet to transfer the money for this round and also your Golf trip deposit is also due.

\$10 seems a very small price to pay, seeing though I will beat everyone there by 10 shots....

He was offered the option to make a bet of 10 cents per shot that he could beat the field by, but later reneged on his statement blaming a computer virus for the derogatory comments. If he had of had enough balls to make the bet he might well have made a pretty handy little profit for the day and could possibly have ended up with enough money to buy himself a new pitching wedge to replace the one he lost somewhere around the Cape Schank course.

Phil Plane successfully navigated the testy Cape Schank layout, he was the only sub par round for the day and was rewarded 15 Championships and his first ever monthly title. Mick Harper proved practice makes perfect and his local course knowledge helped him to shoot the lowest gross score for the day. Once again Dale Robinson has proved he is a powerful force this year and posted his 6th straight top 3 finish for the year.

Gerard and Slinky rounded at the top 5 with scores of Nett 72 and Nett 73. Grant & Craig had Nett 74 and the scores thereafter are not worth mentioning for fearing of discrimination or cyber bullying allegations.

The Cape Schank final scores were as follows:

With only 5x months left for this seasons the quest to pull back on Dale's lead is becoming mathematically harder and harder. He is nearly 30 points out in front of his nearest challenger so unless he starts missing the top 15 cut he is going to be a shoe in to hold the championship trophy for 2011.
