Beacon Hills Golf Course Results

August

I was looking forward to having a nice holiday this month, but it didn't quite seem to work out that way. Don't get me wrong, the Trip to Queensland with the family was great; actually the holiday I was hoping for was a month off from writing the blurb. But it never happened so here is a wrap of the golf in short.

Because I was not there on Sunday I can not really mention, Tony MacIsaacs air swing, Greg Breasley's 4x putts or the Supersized coach's obnoxious self promoting conversations. I can't discuss them because I didn't see them but just the same I could just about guarantee they all happened anyway.

Congratulations to Brendan Seagrave who has finally put a round together this year. Brendan has been receiving regular coaching tips from Big Mick during their weekly trip out to the Waterford Valley golf course. Apparently he has been playing very well at Waterford and then succumbing to the immense pressures of the Sunday Leave Pass strict tournament conditions. Luckily for Grumpy his 87 Nett 67 last Sunday was just enough to outpace the tournament leader Dale Robinson who managed shoot yet another sub par round. The most extraordinary thing about Dales round was that he kept his focus even amongst the chaos and bedlam while being a witness to Stu Coopers diabolical performance.

Playing on the Friday, Stu ended up in more shit than an apprentice plumber at the Werribee water treatment plant. As is often the case it didn't matter how far, wide or deep Stu managed to hit his ball into the crap somehow miraculously the same little white ball kept coming back. (It is a common belief that either Stu cheats and has a huge stash of exactly the same balls with identical markings in his pockets or else he is the luckiest guy on earth.) Unfortunately however on the 18th tee he made the fateful mistake of boasting about his good fortunes. Evidently Stu said to his playing partners "I think I will get this ball framed, it has been in so much trouble but I just keep finding it." As could only be expected he blocked his ball out of bounds and it was never seen again. He then reloaded and the next one followed the same path as its predecessor. Shot 5 from the tee stayed well clear of the boundary fence, in fact it hooked left into the middle of the golf diving range. Despite finding hundreds of similar white dimpled pills, none matched the exact same branding as Stu's ball and another penalty saw him hitting his 8th shot. There definitely was no ball to frame at the end of the game and with a 12 on the last hole it was hardly worth keeping the scorecard for a souvenir either.

The curse of the Sunday Leave Pass administration seems to have spread its tentacles a little further this month. The pressure of organizing the day as is always the case was too much for Stu and he shot a Nett 92 and was a sure bet for last place had it not been for the delegation of management responsibility to Greg Parsons. The usually relaxed and calm School Teacher fell victim to the SLP curse and carded a disappointing 120 to finish in last place with a Nett 95. Even SOS who manned the drinks fridge and fine jar was stripped of his previous months form, he finished in 11th position with his worst ever round of 105. Perhaps we need to get Dale to coordinate next months event at Dorset, and then we will see if he is good enough to break the Sunday Leave Pass administration curse that causes poxy golf performances by the people in charge. Based on this month's results I am certain SOS and GP will not be volunteering their services again anytime soon.

Greg did play at least one good shot. Our sources tell us that on the 14th hole, Greg smashed a long straight drive down the middle of the fairway and then strutted after the ball with arms celebrating above his head yelling “Where big Mick, I don’t reckon even he can hit a ball this far!!!!” One thing is for certain, even if Big Mick was not able to match Greg’s long drive at least his second shot would have travelled further than the three centimeters that GP’s ball did.

The top 7 players all posted very respectable scores and each player proved the key to scoring around the testy Beacon Hills layout was the performance with the flat stick. Despite a few hiccups on the front nine holes, Paul Blizzard putted like a wizard. On the back nine he only had 11 putts, which to put into perspective after the turn his round included 7x one putts and 2x two putts. It was the best display of dropping them in from any where and everywhere that I have ever seen. But then again I didn’t get the pleasure of seeing Brendan on Sunday who had the competitions season low round with the putter. Brendan only had 26 putts for the day including 6x one putts and two chip-ins. If you compare that to Junior Grasso who is currently holding the title for the most putts for the season, with 59 putts in 18 holes at cape-shank a couple of months ago.

The Beacon Hills final scores were as follows:
