Special Thanks to our major prize sponsor Sam from team at

Tocumwal Golf Trip Results

For the guys who didn't make it to Tocumwal this year you missed a great weekend, and for the guys that did go, it's just a pity that you can't remember what happened while you were there. I was trying to think of what were the major events for the weekend but it is all an alcohol induced foggy haze, and I cant really think of much of what actually happened so hopefully you are more interested in the scores than the activities of the weekend.

Firstly we would like to say thanks to everyone for making the season very successful and we hope that the golf trip capped the year off for you in a good way. Congratulations to all of the trophy winners and also the raffle prize winners too, I trust that a little token at the end of the year makes your participation throughout the season even more worthwhile even if the golf ball I won in the raffle only lasted one hit before it was lost.

It was great to see a few blokes make a real effort to attend the golf tip Adam & Rick hit the road at 415am on Saturday morning, apparently Adam was still swigging from the Punch bowl and wearing his party hat from his work Christmas party on Friday Night when he got in the car so he was not the greatest of company for Rick. It was actually lucky that Rick wasn't pulled over for a random breath test since the alcohol fumes that he was ingesting from the "passive inhalation" from Adam's breath and skin pores would have most likely put him over the legal limit.

Andy Larkin flew all of the way from Adelaide for the weekend or was it John Daly I couldn't quite tell the difference. The similarities were quite remarkable. Andy is built like John Daly, he always had a smoke in one hand and a drink in the other hand like John Daly, Andy is pretty good on the punt and come to think of it he played golf like John Daly too. Given that John Daly failed to make the cut for the Australian open it might just have been him that we had the pleasure of playing with and not Andy as we had previously been advised. Either way he was a great bloke and he was good company to have around.

Fitzy and Dave Coups made a late surprise visit on Saturday afternoon. It was great to have the boys up at Toc for the night as they made Saturday night all the more rowdy and entertaining, besides that between the two of them they managed to increase the hotels bar sales by 50% so the Golf Club was happy to have them around too. So, well done boys.

The super coach managed to win both the "Leather Wedge Award" and the "Angry Man Awards" for 2008, and what's more based on Friday's performance he could quite easily have polled nominations for the "Least Improved Award" as well. In the first 9 holes on Friday Fil failed to get past the ladies markers on 5x separate occasions. In fact on the sixth hole he was still playing his fourth shot from behind the squatters tee. It was little wonder that he wrote himself off trying to drown his sorrows on Friday afternoon. Fil was so pissed on Friday night that he was almost kicked out of the restaurant for blurting on the waitress. It was only quick smooth talking from Steve that saved Fil from spending his first night in his hotel room alone. Fil was just lucky that Steve Powne was able to convince the waitress that Fil was actually just trying to speak normally while ordering his dinner and with the extra help from his brother Chris, we were able to prove to the management that Fil usually dribbles all over himself like that even when he is sober.

The hotel staff had a new nickname for Fil. Instead of Super-coach (which he calls himself) whenever they referred to Fil for the entire weekend they would call him “the Nightmare.” Whereas on the contrary, when ever they saw the other Phil they would call him “twinkle toes.” Unlike his namesake, Phil Plane is the absolute charmer, he was the flavour of the month, and spent almost the entire night on the dance floor swooning all of the ladies as he danced up a storm to the rhythm of the blues band. The only problem was that the average age of the women that Phil was escorting was probably higher than the par for the golf course, he was inundated with offers from 70 to 85 year old grandma’s out for their bingo Christmas function to come and dance with them. Phil Plane has all of the moves and he personally kept the golf club rocking all night, but he just needs to appeal to a better demographic if he is to consider himself or be recognized as a ladies man.

Even if Phil’s entourage were old and wrinkly, they still weren’t the least attractive of the Wenches hanging out at the bar. Dressed in the finest of Pink tops was none other than our own David Burns who was voted the “least attractive person in pink.” Burnsie posted the worst round for the Saturday; he shot a Nett 90 (20 shots worse than the winner) and therefore was crowned “Beer wench” for the night. Burnsie delivered drinks to the boys whenever they needed one, to his credit he always with a smile on his face, but internally he was spewing at the huge fall from grace from being the Champion of Champions in 2007 to bottom feeder in 2008. At least Burnsie served his time and didn’t fall victim to a mystery virus as was the case with 2007 Beer Wench who called in sick the moment the winner was announced. Thanks Burnsie you did a great job.

Burnsies workload was made even tougher as Chris Sfiligoj took the opportunity to cash in on his “Champion of Champions” entitlements. As the winner of the winners trophy Chris was eligible for a free drink from the entire field and he did his best to get through the list as quick as he could. At one stage he had 5x Southern and Cokes piled up in front of him, how he was able to stand up at the end of the night was difficult to comprehend let alone take away a clean sweep of the card table like he did, had we not seen it for our selves you would have thought it was beyond the realms of possibility.

Perhaps Chris shared his drinks with Rick, who after the long early morning drive to Tocumwal, the round of golf (which was a shocker by his standards) and a gutful of Beer and perhaps a few southern found the going a bit more difficult. He was seen running out of room 23 about 200am with a glazed stare and a look of determination to get to the bathroom before a gastric reflux got the better of him. Apparently he was seen with his head in the toilet doing a comprehensive sanitary inspection of the porcelain bowl when everyone else was on their way to breakfast. To his credit Rick, still managed to pull his weight and made a valuable contribution to his Ambrose team and finished near the top of the leaders board.

Rick might have had a bad night but he still looked better than Stu Coops who has long since earned the reputation of “Physical wreck” on the golf trips. From the minute Stu gets to the hotel to the final journey home Stu seems to deteriorate and he seems to look worse and worse as the days go on. Apparently there are people in the morgue who tend to look healthier and the corpses generally have more color in their face than what Stu does by the Sunday morning. You would think that after 5 years he would have learnt his lesson by now, but evidently he hasn’t yet.

Poor Deano was the unlucky recipient who drew the short Straw and ended up partnering Stu for the Ambrose event. Any aspirations for winning the event went out the window by the 2nd hole. Deano Played some brilliant golf, but he finished the day with aching shoulders and allegedly he measured in 5cm shorter than when he had started the round after trying to carry Stu for the entire 18 holes.

Deano would have benefited more had he drawn Greg Breasley for a partner, Greg played the best round of golf in his life. Obviously the more Greg plays the better he gets. He captained his team to the “Beer & Barrocca shield trophy” victory and in doing so collected his first ever “Longest Drive prize” and a “Nearest to Pin” prize ball and about 6 skins along the way. It was great to see him in such brilliant form.

While some of the guys were playing outside themselves there was one other player finished his season with a level of consistency never before witnessed within the club. Greg Parsons has had the perfect record. In season 2008 he played all 11x rounds and managed to score a single point in each and every single one of them. His best finishes were 10th place at Warby and Glen Waverly but he never managed to finish inside the top 10 to score more than the standard point for showing up. It is little wonder his peers unanimously voted him in for the “Least Improved Player Award” for 2008. Hopefully the 1x hour lesson will get him up and running for next year.

The new category of champion of champions was played off between all of the players who won a monthly competition during the year; the champion of champions is the player with the best score from all of the monthly winners who attended the golf trip. This competition was played off over 9 mystery holes on the Saturday competition with the player who scored the most stableford points taking out the title and the winner's jacket. Congratulations to Chris Sfiligoj who was the overall winner.

Points	24 points	24 points	19 points	15 points

Chris Sfiligoj won the honour of being the Champion of Champions and wearing the winner's jacket on Saturday night and he was entitled also to free drinks all night from the rest of the players on the trip. Unlike Burnsie last year Chris managed to wangle a free Southern & Coke from almost the entire field. At one stage he had 5x drinks banked up in front of him, and what's worse he was making Burnsie as the beer wench have to deliver them all to him.

After 11x long months and after at least 20432 strokes at an average of 101.65 shots per person, season 2008 has drawn to a close with Alistair Bayer taking out the 1st place ranking with an accumulated total of 63 Championship points. Alistair won the "Seasons Championship trophy" narrowly over a strong finishing Matt MacIssac on 61 points. Alistair won himself a new driver and Matt won a new hybrid club care of our sponsors from the Golf Clearance Outlet and DNR Print for their fine efforts. Congratulations to you both you were both worthy recipients of the prizes and also deserved to get the 11.4 shots taken off your handicaps since the start of this year.

Prizes courtesy of our sponsors

You may remember that during last years Raffle draw Brunto, who had the almost the highest number of entries (26 raffle tickets) with a 5.95% chance of having his name drawn out in the raffle failed to win a single prize, so he then spent the next 3 weeks with the computer investigating the formulas and reprogramming the raffle program. His tinkering must have worked since during this years draw his name came up 6x times. After 5x upgrades he ended up taking home a new golf bag. Now I am not making any formal allegations or suggesting that he has cheated but one could easily justify casting him a leather wedge nomination for 2009 purely on the coincidence of him being a lot luckier this year than the last raffle.

Handicaps

Congratulations to Greg Parsons who managed to play 11 rounds this year for a total of 11x 0.1 increases to his handicap. Hopefully the lessons you won will get you moving in the downward direction in the upcoming season. Matt MacIssac copped another deduction of 1 whole stroke after out performing his handicap yet again. The Sfiligoj brothers, Tony MacIssac and Steve Powne all played within the buffer of their handicaps and the rest of us might as well have stayed in the bar. At least an extra 0.1 shots next year might be enough to get closer to a top 10 finish.
